

Stan Tamulevich

After completing a BS in Natural Resources at U.M., I took a position at the U.S. Forest Products Lab in Madison WI which supported my graduate work in Botany and Genetics at U.W.

It was in Madison that I met my wife Julie in 1965 and we married the next year. Two children followed in 1969 and 1970.

I left USFPL in 1969 and worked in the brokerage industry for 10 years, after which I became an independent Commodity Trading Advisor in 1980. Since then I have simultaneously managed money, written and marketed trading papers, done list management services, written a daily market letter, bought and sold camera equipment, and written some insurance, among other things. I continue to do most of them on a scaled down basis today.

After the kids were in school full time and with me working in my home office, Julie developed her career by building and managing a 4000 family agency for State Farm.

Daughter Jen, worked for Amgen in California for several years. She now resides in Madison, managing drug studies for Kendle International, a clinical research organization, that provides clinical development services on a contract basis to the biopharmaceutical industry worldwide. Jen also just completed her first book (on travel) and is ready to write her second.

Son Jeff is Senior Planner for the City of Tempe, AZ and lives in Scottsdale. In spite of city staffing cutbacks, Jeff has continually moved to more responsible positions in the ranks of city government. He and Jen have made us very proud parents.

Though technically retired, neither of us will "retire" completely. There are always rewarding things to do by staying involved with past business endeavors and seeking out new ventures. Our leisure time finds us dancing, hiking, and biking, visiting friends and enjoying no-itinerary trips that are just plain fun.
